Something from South Africa

Potjiekos - (poy-key-cos) translated "small-pot food", it is traditionally cooked outdoors in a round, cast iron, three-legged cauldron, the potjie. Brought from the Netherlands to South Africa in the 17th century and found in the homes and villages of people throughout Southern Africa. Ingredients range widely according to what is available, but the base consists of meat i.e. Lamb, beef, chicken or pork. It is not uncommon to use seafood either.

Please ask for the "Potjie" of the day. £15.90
